

Army Net-Zero Installations Conference

This conference is intended to support the efforts of the Army's Net Zero Pilot Installations and the Army's overall Net Zero Initiative. The conference offers interactive training sessions, exposure to innovative solutions from industry partners, and interaction between Army installations as they move forward Net Zero goals in energy water and waste.

Subject Matter Experts from HQ Department of Army organizations, Army Commands and Direct Reporting Units (DRUs), U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE) Districts and Divisions, and technical support organizations who are directly involved in Net Zero Installation initiatives are encouraged to attend. The conference is also open to attendees from academia and industry.

The conference agenda includes two plenary sessions, and break-out tracks for energy, water and waste. The plenary sessions include presentations from senior leaders in the Army, other Federal Agencies, and industry. An optional field trip for attendees staying for the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air-Conditioning Engineers (ASHRAE) conference is being planned for the afternoon of 20 Jan 2012. Please visit the Army's Net Zero Installations website at <https://eko.usace.army.mil/public/fa/netzero/> for conference updates and materials.

During their respective break-out tracks, the Net Zero Pilot installations will present recent accomplishments and approaches taken to strive toward net zero. The remainder of the tracks will include technical presentations, panel discussions, and innovative approaches to assist installations in achieving net zero.

Cost for attendance to government employees is $450, non-government individuals $575, and one day attendance $250. Registration fee does not include meals.
